Big Arms and Ammunition Concern Builds Branch Factory in Canada

Canadian endorsement of quality in loaded shot shells has brought the Remington Arms Union Metallic Cartridge Company across the border with the first ammunition factory to be built in this country by United States manufacturers to supply this market. This big arms and ammunition concern, now nearing its one hundredth year of business activity, has its principal factories at Bridgeport, Conn., U.S.A., where ammunition is made, and at Ilion, N.Y., U.S.A., the home of modern arms making. Up to this year the steadily increasing Remington business in Canada has been handled from the home factories, but of late our dealers and sportsmen have made the demand so strong that early in 1913 the company's Executive Board decided to build a branch factory on this side of the line. Windsor, Ontario, offered advantages as a central distributing point and as a skilled labor market and early in 1913 a factory site consisting of over one hundred acres was purchased there.

The problem then was to rush the plant to early completion and install an equipment capable of producing ammunition of the same high quality demanded in the strict 'home factory' inspection. The order was given to spare no expense in providing for the expeditious filling of the unusually heavy orders of the year. A large force of workmen was recruited and five months from the day the first ground was broken Windsor boasted a strictly modern ammunition factory equipped with the latest improved machinery, a ballistic range and chronograph for testing penetration, velocity, pattern, etc., together with powder magazines and storage warehouses. Builders who watched the seemingly magical creation of the splendid plant in all its completeness claim that a remarkable record was made in the erection and installation work.

Two railroads have built switches to the factory door and there is a direct connection with the lake routes so that every facility is afforded for prompt shipments. Deliveries of the famous Arrow, Nitro Club and New Club speed shells are already being made from the new factory.

The Real Reason

Certain public employees who have to submit daily to a rapid fire of well-meant but needless questions may be excused if they occasionally turn upon their persecutors. This is how an elevator boy dealt with one of them: Don't you ever feel sick going up and down in this elevator all day? A fussy lady asked him.

Yes, ma'am, courteously replied the elevator boy.

Is it the motion going down? pursued the lady.

No, ma'am.

The going up?

No, ma'am.

Is it the stopping that does it?

No, ma'am.

Then what is it?

Answering questions, ma'am.

The Dog and the Lobster

A Scotsman was strolling through the market-place in Glasgow one day and close at his heels followed his faithful collie. Attracted by a fine display of shell and other fish, the Scot stopped to admire, perhaps to purchase. The dog stood by, gently wagging its tail, while its master engaged the fishmonger in conversation.

Unfortunately for the dog, its tail dropped for a moment over a big basketful of fine, live lobsters. Instantly one of the largest lobsters snapped its claws on the tail and the surprised collie dashed off through the market yelling its pain, while the lobster hung on grimly, though dashed violently from side to side.

The fishmonger for a moment was speechless with indignation, then, turning to his prospective customer, he bawled:

Mon! mon! whustle to yer dog; whustle to yer dog!
Hoots, mon, returned the other placidly, whustle to yer lobster!

Advice to Farmers

Present prospects indicate a fair crop of grain throughout the three western provinces, but do not point to any larger yield than last year. This, combined with the big shortage in the spring wheat crop of the United States, and also that of France and other European countries, and the present high price of corn, all points toward a high level of prices, and we cannot see any reason why prices should be hammered down to the low level of last year. We claim the right value of Northern wheat should not be less than 30c; 3 C. W. oats, 40c; 1 N. W. C. Flaxseed, 1.50, and 3 C. W. Barley, 50c; basis in store Fort William or Port Arthur, but of course, if farmers rush their grain on the market early with instructions to sell for what it will bring, prices are bound to be forced lower. Any farmer who is in a position to hold his grain at home should do so, and those who are obliged to sell to get cash should ship and sell only enough to carry them over. If the selling of all our grain could be spread evenly over the whole season, prices could easily average from 10c to 15c per bushel higher, which would mean an enormous extra amount of cash brought into Western Canada. Last year the larger bulk of our grain was sold at ridiculously low prices—selling down as low as 15c for 1 Northern; 10c for 1 N. W. C. Flaxseed; 20c for 3 C. W. Oats, and 40c for 3 C. W. Barley. Since spring opened we have sold Northern at 100c; 1 N. W. C. Flaxseed 1.50c; 3 C. W. Oats at 30c, and 3 C. W. Barley at 50c, basis in store Fort William or Port Arthur. This easily shows the huge loss to farmers through marketing their grain in enormous quantities right at the beginning of the season. There is far more reason this year for prices of our wheat ranging above the dollar mark than last year. Once prices are forced down it is hard to get them to advance again until stocks in sight are greatly reduced; therefore, be careful not to rush your grain forward too fast. Every carlot held back helps just that much to hold prices up and put them higher. We would advise farmers that whenever possible load your grain direct from the wagon into the car, and when you send your shipping bill to a commission agent, figure out the situation well before selling. To send instructions to sell for whatever it will bring, serves to break prices down more quickly than any other way we know of. Instruct your commission agent that you want your grain sold at a certain price and then hold for that price. If you do have to pay two or three cents per bushel storage what of it, because you will eventually get the price you want, and besides you are helping to hold prices up. The distribution of cars should also be watched closely. Farmers should get together and arrange to have a representative keep careful watch on the railway order book and see that each man is allotted cars according to the Grain Act. That is what the Grain Act is for and if you do not use it, the fault lies with yourselves. We are grain commission merchants and give our undivided attention to this business. Our experience extends around 25 years, and farmers consigning grain for us to handle receive the benefit of this experience in the advice and information we give them. We have no agents in the country, simply because our 10c per bushel commission charges does not give us profit enough to permit of engaging agents at country points, and at the same time show even a small profit on the season's business. Write us for our shipping instructions and grain market advice. Even if you do not ship grain for us to handle, write anyway. The information may help you to secure better net returns, and it may lead to bringing us some of your business the following season. We can handle your grain right for you and we know it, and we want you to know it also. That will mean more business for us, which is exactly what we are working for.

Facts and Figures

Because a farmer keeps a herd of dairy cows it does not necessarily follow that each one in the herd is especially adapted for dairying. The type and general appearance may be good, the temperament and disposition may promise fair results, but the real value of each one is to be measured actually and practically by just her individual yield not the average of the herd as a whole, at the end of a full season's work.

Over and over again when dairy farmers have checked up the production separately of each cow there have been found wonderful surprises and serious disappointments. Those good looking heifers turned out to be poor producers; the despoiled cow of insignificant appearance has often proved a splendid money-maker when her moderate cost of feed has been deducted from the large total yield of milk and fat. Some cow testing figures recorded by the dairy division at Ottawa, show great contrasts. For instance, two cows yielding the same weight of milk may differ in profit by $25.00. The aged cow may do far better than the five-year-old. Two mature cows in the same herd have been known to differ in production by eight thousand pounds of milk. One herd of twelve cows last year gave thirty-six tons of milk more than another herd of twelve. How are these vital points to be definitely ascertained by the practical dairyman? Such facts are brought to light when figures are used. It is just as simple as A. B. C. Keep records of individual production; it takes scarcely ten minutes per cow per month, and abundantly pays every dairyman.

Nero's Golden House

Dr. Fritz Weege, a young German archaeologist, drew attention to the enormous palace that was once erected by Nero in Rome. The Italian government, in consequence, instituted the very interesting excavations that are now being made in what is called 'The Golden House.' This immense palace covered an acre of ground and was about three times the size of the present Vatican. The Golden House, which extended from the Palatine far up the Esquiline, was erected after the burning of Rome in 64. The building was afterwards converted by Nero's successors into other edifices. The excavations are revealing much that is of extraordinary interest.

Single Taxation

EDITOR PIONEER
Dear Sir,

Two years ago my taxes was $123.00 by the old way of taxation; last year they were $160.00 single taxation; this year they are $240.00 single tax again, all on the same property. Surely it is gratifying to know that my property is increasing in value so rapid these hard times. So much for single tax or something else. The trouble seems to me that the single tax is taking it off the merchant and business man with one or two lots and a fine residence and putting it on to farm land, acreage and other such property that is bringing in a very small revenue.

I am told of one quarter section of land in the town limits that is taxed for $340.00 this year, a good cash rent for it. Where is the owners profit or living to come from? Again I know of another man who owns two or three lots with a fine residence on them that used to be assessed, I think, for about $6,000. Today I believe he is assessed for $600.00, therefore his taxes will be $36.00; this same place ought to rent for forty or fifty dollars per month. Compare his taxes and the farmer. So much for single tax again. Of course the renter of a business goes scott free and still we pay just as much for our living and other things from them as we did two years ago, when they were paying tax on their goods. Single tax may do in larger growing towns where vacant property is snapped up for building purposes, but in a town like ours at the present time with no advancement whatever, I am afraid it is putting too much tax on certain property that the owners can't pay because it isn't bringing in the amount of the taxes, therefore taxes on the whole will be harder to collect than before and where are we going to come out at.

Many Settlers Coming to Canada

Winnipeg, Sept. 15.—Owing to the severe drought which is being experienced in the states of Iowa, Kansas and Oklahoma, the immigration from the United States has gone up 80 per cent during the past four weeks, says J. Bruce Walker, immigration commissioner. He points out that the reports that the drought is so serious in the above mentioned states as to bring about the ruination of from 60 to 70 per cent. of the crops. The result has been that there has been an enormous increase, about 80 per cent., both in the correspondence and the number of land seekers from these states. Of course, he says, this increase has also been, to a certain extent, due to the rumors of the enormous crop now being garnered in Western Canada.

Mr. Walker explains that this increase is all the more surprising when it is remembered that up to six weeks ago, the emigration from the United States showed a falling off of over 10 per cent.—Morning Allertan.

Crop Statistics

The following crop report up to July 31st, is made by the census bureau of Ottawa:

All the field crops of Canada on July 31, excepting only fall wheat (77 75), hay and clover (74 57) and alfalfa (76 35) are reported as having a condition above 80, the range being from 82 beans and corn for husking to 89 for potatoes and mixed grains.

In the three Northwest provinces spring wheat is reported as 84.60 in Manitoba, 89 in Saskatchewan and 88 in Alberta, the other grain crops being correspondingly high, barley, especially in Saskatchewan and Alberta, being 90 per cent. or over. Root crops in the Northwest provinces are also particularly good.

The condition of buckwheat in the Maritime provinces and in Quebec is 90 and over; but in Ontario it is down to 73.43. Flaxseed is above 80 in the Northwest provinces, and in Saskatchewan, where the great bulk of this crop is grown the percentage condition is 84.17. Sugar beet, grown for beet root sugar in Ontario and Alberta is 80.44 for the former and 92.31 for the latter province.

The preliminary estimate of the yield per acre of fall wheat is 22.38 bushels, which for the harvested area in Ontario, Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia of 825,800 acres indicates a total yield of 18,482,000 bushels, as compared with 16,396,000 bushels from 781,000 acres in 1912. This yield is 13 per cent. above that of last year.

The average yield per acre of hay and clover is estimated at 1.23 ton, indicating a total yield of 9,396,500 tons from 7,621,600 acres, as compared with 11,189,000 tons from 7,633,600 acres or 1.47 ton per acre in 1912. Alfalfa, with an average yield per acre of 1.38 ton, shows an estimated total production of 143,000 tons from 103,250 acres as compared with 310,100 tons from 111,300 acres, or 2.79 tons in 1912.

Railroad to be Built in West Country

From a report published in Tuesday's Telegram of the 9th, a railroad to be known as the Dominion Western Railway will be built through the country west of Didsbury and Olds.

Tenders for the completion of the first 100 miles of this railway from Calgary to the Montana Border expired on Monday September 8th and it is the intention of the railroad company to push the completion of this part of the line as soon as possible.

The line starts at the international boundary at a place called Whiskey Gap and will run north through Cardston, then northwest through Pincher Creek to Lundbreck, where it crosses the Crow's Nest line of the C.P.R. and Old Man River. It will then run north through the Porcupine Hills and then through the oil fields to a point south of the reserve, and then right into Calgary.

The road will tap P. Burns' coal mines and several others in the southwest. It runs through a very rich farming country and if the oil fields amount to anything, the road will handle the oil shipments from there and the company expect that many refineries will be built.

The above is a description of the road which will be finished now as soon as the contractors can do so, but later there will be an extension made running northwesterly, past Gull and Snake lakes, by way of the coal mines along the Red Deer river in the north, and then up through Edmonton and turning west, goes into British Columbia to Fort St. John. The part of the railroad for which tenders have now been received, and for which contracts were let last week, extends from Cardston and continues up through Pincher Creek, Lundberg and north to Westrup Cattle ranch. When this section is completed, contracts will be let to complete the road through Pridis into Calgary. The road will enter Calgary on the west side, near the golf links, but the exact location of the depot has not been determined.

A branch line will be run to the coal fields of the south fork of the Old Man river as soon as the first 100 miles of the line is completed, and as the line proceeds north arms will be built into the mining districts and practically all the coal mines from the far south to the peace River district will be tapped by this main trunk line of the railroad, when it is completed in the course of three or four years.

Automobile Chase

When Prof. Elliott, of Olds Agricultural school arrived in Innisfail on Tuesday, September 9th with his brand new automobile, he little dreamed that serious trouble would follow his innocent action. Incidentally, Ken. Kerr's livery, already in the lime-light through the recent fire, gets some more prominence.

The professor left his car in the Pioneer livery for safe keeping over night, but about four o'clock Wednesday morning, a young man, giving his name as G. Harrison, who has been "summering" at the Royal hotel for several weeks, thought the clear, cool morning would be an opportune time for a "joy ride." He therefore made his way into the barn, though all the doors are said to have been locked, fed the government car a full meal of gasoline and lubricator and started off on the trail. John Benson observed him hanging around the car, but thinking it was the owner getting ready, said nothing for some time.

However, the theft was soon discovered and Fred Smith, mounting Kenny's fiery steed, the Ford, gave chase. About Olds he began to over-haul the fugitive and then the real fun began. Angered at being overtaken and fearing capture, the fugitive pulled a gun and fired four shots at his pursuer, fortunately for all concerned, missing him. Through Olds at full speed rushed the two autos, and about two miles south of that town Smith captured his man. By dint of strenuous effort Harrison was induced to accompany his captor into Olds, where the Mounted Police took charge of him.

Harrison was brought before Justice Lauder on Thursday morning, charged with stealing an automobile, and was committed for trial. He was also sent for trial on a charge of shooting with intent.

MURRAY MURGATROYD

JOURNALIST

By Morice Gerard

Muller, seeing there was no alternative, produced the key from a secret pocket deftly concealed beneath the braid of his coat. Reluctantly he opened the dispatch-box. As he did so, Murgatroyd noticed that he was holding his left hand in a suspicious manner. There was the point of a small and very sharp stiletto sticking out from it, which had doubtless lain in his pocket with the key. The journalist had no intention of feeling the point of that death-dealing little instrument. He sharply struck with his fist on the back of Muller's left hand. The stiletto dropped. Murgatroyd put his foot on it. Muller turned and glared at him, as if about to renew the personal conflict. Murgatroyd was quite composed.

I will keep that for my own, he said. It will be an appropriate reminder of you.

Muller muttered a German oath between his teeth. Then he opened the dispatch box more rapidly. His last bolt had been shot—unsuccessfully. The box was full of papers; at the bottom of which were the Transalpine documents. Muller handed them over without a word. Murgatroyd looked them through and saw they were correct. A feeling of intense satisfaction took the place of the anxiety and suspense of the past few weeks. Muller read it and cursed again—more loudly. It recalled Murgatroyd to the rest of the transaction not yet completed.

The other papers must be burnt. Not all of them? Some of them are private to myself.

How can I tell whether you are burning all or not? Either I must look them all through and choose or you must burn the lot.

Muller hesitated for a minute or two. Then he threw all the contents of the dispatch box into the fire, stirring them with a poker while they blazed. Murgatroyd watching them, came to the conclusion that they were almost all the papers Jordan had described. When only a few ashes remained, Murgatroyd said—

Now write the address you wish these papers to be sent to, indicating the ones he held in his hand.

Muller wrote down the address of a

Put: To wait till called for. Doesn't mean to go? was Murgatroyd's sotto voice comment. We will see about that. He made no comment, however, beyond saying—

I want a guarantee in writing that you will leave England before twenty-four hours have passed, and not return before ten years have passed. Is not my word enough?

No. Muller sat down, wrote the prescribed words, and signed the paper.

Murgatroyd took up his hat, stick and gloves, and put the documents, except the last mentioned, into his breast-pocket, then nodding to Muller, he left the room. At the end of the passage he found Inspector Murphy pacing up and down.

I am glad you have come, the latter said. My time is up. Hope you have succeeded?

Yes, I have got all I wanted—thanks to you, Inspector.

Yes, I believe I had a little to do with it, I doubt whether I was right in letting that rascal slip through my fingers.

Murgatroyd doubted it to, but did not say so. Instead he handed the paper Muller had signed to Murphy.

You will see to that? All right, I will jog his memory if I find it falling.

And Inspector Murphy was, as usual, as good as his word.

CHAPTER XIII

Thompson-Halliday

A dinner party consisting of men only is not generally a very lively affair, for as a rule it means an object in view, although of course there are brilliant exceptions. Parliamentary dinners before the meeting of the Houses are not exceptions to the rule. Uniformity, not diversity is the bond which brings and keeps the company together, whether to attack or to defend. Mr. Thompson-Halliday, not being as yet of Cabinet or ex-Cabinet rank, or a prominent official, was receiving his friends in Eaton Gardens. Covers had been laid for twenty, and it was not until cigars and coffee had circulated that tongues began to wag freely, and the restraints of a function recognized in England as of solemn moment began to wear off.

Mr. Thompson-Halliday was a short, stout man, well on the shady side of forty, to whom sudden opulence had given a snobbish air of self-satisfaction, which he would have lacked under more trying conditions. Good living had also begun to twinkle out of his small, quick, glancing eyes, and to indicate itself in his face generally. All his guests were brother members of the Commons' House of Parliament, in sympathy generally with his views, although not all sitting on the same side of the House. A Government generally has to face beside the legitimate Opposition, whose main duty is to oppose, the candid criticism, and often the barely concealed hostility of sections of its own supporters, whose fads have been neglected, or whose private ambitions have been thwarted.

Mr. Thompson-Halliday had a certain skill in amalgamating apparently discordant elements, and using the result to serve his own ends. He gave excellent dinners in London; he kept open house in the country, and his great wealth permitted a somewhat lavish expenditure in assisting members in contesting constituencies, who would have gone under but for his opportune help.

Pocket boroughs disappeared with the Reform Bill, but the machinery for influencing votes and opinions in the House of Commons is in full working order still. Mr. Thompson-Halliday had carried the art of influence to a high pitch of excellence. He knew to a nicety where the shoe pinched, and hastened to relieve it; many members owed their seats to his timely assistance. He gave them absolute freedom, but with the understanding that when he required their assistance it should be forthcoming. These were not the men he had been dining. They were his equals in money and position—in the latter at any rate—but for all that were not insensible to the argument of first-rate cookery, and a cellar of wine inherited by their host, and selected with consummate skill.

Well, Halliday, what is to be the outcome of this Transalpine affair? Are you to lead the van of opposition? It will take all the tact you have got to make your side appear patriotic.

The speaker was Mr. Henry Mason, a thin man who sat on the Government side, but frequently voted with the Opposition.

Your side! Our side, you mean Mason, put in Halliday quickly. I know you agree with me that the Government has put its foot in it this time.

In fact it hasn't a leg to stand on, to complete the metaphor, suggested Moriarty, an Irishman who sat for an English constituency.

Quite so. Firing won't do this time; we must have something more drastic.

All the same, the country will look at the whole affair suspiciously. The average Briton thinks his country always and inevitably in the right.

Especially when a few slices of land are in dispute.

I have a very strong case, remarked Thompson-Halliday with assurance, and the Government a very weak one. I am not afraid of the country. Land-grabbing more often than not means burnt fingers, and to my thinking the nation is sick of these trumped-up disputes. I know my constituents are at the back of me in the matter. This Transalpine claim is sheer injustice. If they could prove we ever had an acre of land within the sphere in dispute, it would be different; but they can't, simply because we never had space to bury a full-grown infant.

GILLETTE'S LYE

What makes you so sure of that, Halliday? The speaker had not joined in the conversation before. Hanley is not the man I should have thought to put his foot down unless he knew the ground on which he stood.

Hanley! You all talk Hanley! I tell you it's all manner with him, that confounded air of superior knowledge and concentrated wisdom. He is cautious enough, I grant you, but not farseeing; and caution which is a cheap sort of political wisdom, falls where large issues are at stake. Besides, this matter wanted a retained lawyer, and every one knows Hanley is not that, anyway.

Halliday talks as if he were Lord Chancellor, laughed Moriarty. Who coached you in your law?

A better man than coached Hanley, anyway.

What do you propose? inquired Mason.

These are the terms of the Amendment, and Halliday handed a paper across the table. The Opposition leaders have approved the wording and the party will support it to a man. We are sure of some support—unless Hanley makes out a better case than I credit him with—a good deal of support on the Government side.

The lady litigant had paid out good money to clerks and bailiffs till she was nervous about it.

Who is that? she whispered to her lawyer as a new functionary put in an appearance.

That? that's the crier, the lawyer replied.

Goodness! Can't I do my own crying and save her?

The mayor of a French town had, in accordance with the regulations, to make out a passport for a rich and highly respectable lady of his acquaintance, who, in spite of a slight disfigurement, was very vain in her personal appearance. His native politeness prompted him to gloss over the defect, and after a moment's reflection he wrote among the items of personal description: Eyes dark, beautiful, tender, expressive, but one of them missing.

AN OLD NURSE

Persuaded Doctor to Drink Postum.

An old faithful nurse and an experienced doctor, are a pretty strong combination in favor of Postum, instead of tea and coffee.

The doctor said:

"I began to drink Postum five years ago on the advice of an old nurse."

"During an unusually busy winter, between tea, coffee and overwork, I became a victim of insomnia. In a month after beginning Postum, in place of tea and coffee, I could eat anything and sleep as soundly as a baby."

"In three months I had gained twenty pounds in weight. I now use Postum altogether instead of tea and coffee; even at bedtime with a soda cracker or some other tasty biscuit."

"Having a little tendency to Diabetes, I used a small quantity of saccharine instead of sugar, to sweeten with. I may add that today tea or coffee are never present in our house and very many patients, on my advice, have adopted Postum as their regular beverage."

"In conclusion I can assure anyone that, as a refreshing, nourishing and nerve-strengthening beverage, there is nothing equal to Postum."

Name given by Canadian Postum Co., Windsor, Ont. Write for booklet, "The Road to Wellville."

Postum comes in two forms.

Regular (must be boiled). Instant Postum doesn't require boiling but is prepared instantly by stirring a level teaspoonful in an ordinary cup of hot water, which makes it right for most persons.

A big cup requires more and some people who like strong things put in a large heaping spoonful and temper it with a large supply of cream.

Experiment until you know the amount that pleases your palate and have it served that way in the future. "There's a Reason" for Postum.

MORE WOMEN THAN MEN

They Throw Off Disease More Easily, That's the Reason

The fact that in almost all civilized countries women outnumber men has been ascribed to the higher birth rate of girl babies; yet statistics show that 105 boys are born to every 100 girls. According to figures compiled by a European statistician the girl has a better chance than the boy of attaining maturity.

He finds that from the third to the fifteenth year the mortality for both sexes is the same; from the fifteenth to the nineteenth year the critical age for girls the girl's chances are slightly better than the boy's; from the thirtieth year to the thirty-fifth the mortality among women is smaller than among men, and it continues smaller until the seventeenth year, for a decade and a half, the sexes once more have the same chance of survival, but above 85 years of age woman again stands a much better chance than man.

To account for this difference the statistician points out that woman has greater resilience in shaking off diseases than man. It is true that the physical strength of man is greater than woman's but a woman's power of endurance is more robust.

One reason for this is that woman possesses a finer perception of her power of endurance than a man, and when her perception warns her of fatigue she stops. A man does not stop until his power is exhausted. His nervous system is not as finely organized as a woman's, and as Mosso, the Italian physiologist, has pointed out, men and women are entirely dependent upon their nerves for caution not to over-exert. While it is true that women more easily contract many diseases, particularly nervous and mental diseases, than men, they overcome them with greater ease.

Royal Punishment

The constraints and formalities which surround royalty are particularly trying to youth, and while the Queen of Holland could never refer to her childhood as being a very dull one, as Queen Victoria in mature years described her own at Kensington Palace, yet when her Dutch Majesty was a little girl she greatly preferred playing with her dolls to attending to the official duties that had already begun for her. If you don't behave, I'll make you a queen! she is said to have admonished an erring doll.

Again, one day she was overheard telling one of the dolls, who evidently refused to take a necessary nap:—

If you don't go to sleep, you shall go out tomorrow in a carriage, and all the time you shall bow right and left to people who keep pulling off their hats! So hurry up and off to sleep!

Coal Loading by Vacuum Pipes

The vacuum-cleaner principle is having new applications every day; but one of the strongest is for the unloading of coal cars. A big Austrian power plant is being equipped to handle all its coal by vacuum pipes. Coal that is graded according to Austrian standards as dust coal and nut coal is delivered in carload lots to the plant and a great pipe is dropped into the car. The coal is sucked up through this pipe and carried to the storage piles two hundred yards away. Coal for the boiler fires is carried from the storage pile by other vacuum pipes direct to the fire and there fed in by mechanical stokers.

The Smallest Dynamo

A lilliputian electric dynamo, perfect in every detail, but weighing only a quarter of an ounce, was shown at work before the Paris Academy of Science. Its constructor is a French mechanician named Trevet. This dynamo is three-fifths of an inch long, half an inch wide, and three-fifths of an inch high. The coil is a quarter of an inch in diameter, and is wired with five and a half feet of silk insulated copper wire one-fifth hundredth of an inch in thickness. A tension is indicated of 3.5 volts by a current of 0.2 ampere, but as to its power there is no instrument sensitive enough to record it. While at work the toy machine made a sound like the humming of a bee.

No man or woman should hobble painfully about because of corns when so certain a relief is at hand as Holloway's Corn Cure.

Writing for Posterity

A prominent French critic, the story runs, once said to George Bernard Shaw:

You are putting on a new comedy Monday night. Let me attend one of the dress rehearsals, won't you?

Impossible, said Mr. Shaw. My dress rehearsals are always private. I have to refuse even the most distinguished critics access to them.

But, said the other, I want to write a critical criticism. If I have to write and telegraph it in a few minutes on Monday night it will be very hurriedly done, and I fear it will give a wrong impression of your comedy to Paris the next day.

Have no anxiety on that score, Mr. Shaw replied. My comedies are not written for the next day.

Kings as Ornaments

When European democracy continues its process of relegating to the position of spectacular ornaments its crowned heads, interest in the personalities of these picturesque individuals continues to be one of the features of the social order today, particularly on the continent.

The modern monarch has come, more and more, to stand merely as the symbol of the continuity of national life, the emblem of the people's distinctive nationality and sovereignty. Even if, in a few scattered instances, he pretends to regard himself as ruler by divine right, his people no longer look upon him as such.

Even the great Hohenzollern, William II, has recently publicly insisted that his sole object as monarch has been, and will continue to be, not the glorification of his dynasty, but the welfare of the German people.

As each passes off the human stage, his successor, born and reared in a more democratic atmosphere than himself, becomes more than ever the representative of his people. The rising generation of young royals, if a republic in form does not prevent their actually reigning, will sit in the chairs of constitutional power democratic at heart.—American Review of Reviews.

Extreme Old Age Records

The recent death of a Chinaman in New York at the age, as he claimed, of 149 years, raises the question whether the records of extreme old age are authentic. The cases in which men or women have reached the century mark are so numerous that there seems no reason for skepticism concerning them; but the records of Thomas Cam, aged 207; William Edwards, 168, and Henry Jenkins, 169, are open to the doubt that falls on all mediaeval statistics. The tables of life insurance companies within the next century will probably furnish reliable data for future investigators.

Emily—Isn't it funny how timid Ellen is?

Maude—Dear, yes; she doesn't wait to go faster than eighty-five miles an hour when she rides on the back of Charlie's motorcycle.

Art and Long Hair

The hard contemporary fact is that the gloriously named authors are becoming sadly rare, even rarer than long haired actors.

The long haired musician is still with us, though one of the most eminent masters of the pianoforte has yielded something to the modern spirit by submitting briefly to the shears.

Individual age has here a potent influence—age, or the getting through with thing. What a wonderful picture person Dickens was at 25! And how matter-of-fact at 40! Browning suffered a similarly sobering and averaging effect.

The same thing it is true of many other figures in that period, and it is not easy to guess whether the changing fashion set in during their middle years, or whether advancing age would have effected the same change in any case.

On the day of his wedding a man is agined that his wife drew a prize; but as a matter of fact he is seldom anything more than a consolation prize.

May Call to Other Planets

The London Daily Citizen announces the discovery of a gas one-sixteenth the weight of hydrogen.

Its existence on earth has not yet been determined, but the leading scientists, including Sir William Ramsay are confident they can find or produce it. Its presence in the sun was definitely established by a discovery made during the last eclipse.

The Daily Citizen quotes an anonymous scientist who describes the gas as being named coronium. If it can be produced on this earth it may revolutionize the science of aerostatics. When the earth becomes too cold for human habitation the people could move in airships to any planet that might strike their fancy. This would be unnecessary for a million years or more.

Bocker—I think it has a roomette for improvement.

A prominent physician in an Arkansas town has an extensive practice among the laboring classes, where economy is the best policy. One day the little daughter of one of the men became very sick and the doctor was hurriedly called. He arrived and administered a soothing treatment to the patient who was soon sleeping soundly and upon leaving, prescribed some medicine which was to be obtained at the drug store. The next day the visit had to be repeated, and some more medicine bought. This was kept up until the little girl was entirely well, when the father went to see the doctor to settle his bill.

As his purse was rather slim, he approached the doctor with many misgivings.

Here is your bill, sir, began the doctor, handing him the paper. This for the drugs from the store and this for my visits.

The poor man looked and was horrified at the amount requested, realizing that he could not pay it all. Then after thinking a moment he took out his purse and laid some pieces of change in the physician's hand saying: Here's the money for the drugs, doctor, and—we will return your calls.

What He's Waiting For

Why don't you ask her to marry you? You've been calling on her for two years now.

I know, but I am waiting. You've heard her sing hundreds of times, and you like her voice.

That's true. You've heard her play the piano. You know she's an accomplished musician.

You've eaten meals she has cooked. You have seen her handiwork about the house. She'd make a splendid housewife.

I know all that, but— She's a delightful hostess. You've seen her when she was entertaining friends.

I admit that. Then why wait any longer? I'm waiting to see her in a quarrel with her mother. I want to see how she acts when she loses her temper.

This is to certify that I have used MINARD'S Liniment in my family for years, and consider it the best liniment on the market. I have found it excellent for horse flesh.

There is a young man in New York who is undoubtedly still wondering whether he has an unusually large foot or whether a certain German lad of generous dimensions from Jersey is troubled with near-sightedness.

The woman in question boarded a New York bound ferry boat with a big heavy valise. Apparently very much fatigued from her efforts, she threw herself into a seat, landing her bulky grip squarely upon the toes of a young man next to her. He responded with a look of suppressed rage and pain, and then shoved the valise aside, unnoticed by the woman.

A few minutes later, when the ferry reached its slip, the young man was suddenly amazed to behold the stout lady fumbling about with her hand on his foot. Thoroughly aroused at this liberty, he was about to demand an explanation, when the woman, with a look of great embarrassment, exclaimed: Ach! Excuse me, it looked like mine bag.

Work of the Dominion Department of Agriculture

The report of the Minister of Agriculture for the year ending March 31, 1913 has been printed. It contains in concise and readable form a review of the work carried on by the Department of Agriculture through its several branches and divisions during the year. It concludes also the Orders in Council that were passed affecting agriculture.

The report is presented under five general heads as follows: 1. General remarks; 2. Arts and Agriculture; 3. Patents of Invention; 4. Copyrights, Trade Marks, Industrial Designs and Timber Marks; 5. Public Health. There is also included an appendix having reference to Public Health, Exhibition and the Seventh International Congress held at Rome against Tuberculosis.

Referring to the trade in dairy products it is pointed out that for the first time in sixty years no butter was exported to the United Kingdom, but on the other hand more than six and one-half million pounds were imported into Canada during the year.

In the Seed Branch among other work almost nineteen thousand samples of farm seeds were tested for farmers and seed merchants.

The Live Stock Commissioner by means of public sales distributed upwards of 1,300 breeding sheep, about one-third of which were pure-bred rams. In the record of performance about one thousand cows have been entered for test. These represent stock of about 150 farms.

Through the Experimental Farms system which includes the Central Farm and fifteen branch farms and stations an enormous amount of work has been done. The report not only gives one a general knowledge of its extent but brings to light many accomplishments for agriculture. In Saskatchewan it is pointed out that the spring wheat 'Marquis' yielded at the rate of 31 bushels per acre. The still newer Prelude wheat which ripens much earlier than other good sorts was sent out for test during the year. A much larger quantity is promised for distribution during the coming winter. Many other useful points are recorded in the minister's report, copies of which are available to those who apply for it to the Publication Branch of the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa.

It is usually safe to say that when a child is pale, sickly, peevish and restless, the cause is worms. These parasites range the stomach and intestines causing serious disorders of the digestion and preventing the infant from deriving sustenance from food. Miller's Worm Powders, by destroying the worms, corrects these faults of the digestion and serves to restore the organs to healthy action.

A young woman from the east was conversing with a Kentuckian about tobacco and tobacco raising.

She was very pretty and a good conversationalist and the young man from Kentucky was vastly interested in her until she gave him a sudden shock by announcing:

I should love to see a tobacco field, especially when it is just plugging out.

Magistrate—You broke a mantelpiece ornament on your wife's head. What have you got to say for yourself?

Prisoner—It was a pure accident.

Magistrate—An accident? What? Didn't you intend to hit your wife?

Prisoner—Yes, but I didn't mean to break the ornament.

A New York Suburban Scene

She was running across lots to catch the 1.25 train for New York. It was precisely 1.24 1-2 and the train already was panting into the station. At her heels was a youngster making as good time as she could, and was crying. By the time she reached the station steps she was a good one hundred yards ahead of the little boy, but he kept at it, crying louder and louder. The conductor was holding the train for her.

Madam, said the conductor, as she climbed up the car steps, who is that little boy?

My youngest, she said perfectly breathless.

I didn't have time to kiss him good by.

Well, you get right off this train and kiss him. We can wait better than he can.

The conductor stood with his hand on the signal cord while the operation was performed, and when the train went off, leaving the youngster happy and smiling.

CURED DISEASES OF THE KIDNEYS

Once Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are introduced into the family and their efficiency becomes known they are usually found too valuable to do without. For everyday ills arising from liver and bowel disorders they bring relief promptly, and when complicated diseases of the kidneys and liver develop they often prove a successful cure after doctors have failed. As an illustration, you may read the following, which was received a few days ago:

Mrs. John Wright, 53 McGee street, Toronto, Ont., states: "We have used Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills for ten years, and would not be without them. My husband suffered from kidney trouble, and after taking treatment from several doctors without receiving any benefit, tried Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, which worked a complete cure. Since that time we have used them for all stomach and liver disorders."

Among the bewildered, and in some cases indignant, spectators gathered at the recent Futurist exhibition of painting and sculpture in Chicago was a young man from Springfield, in charge of a cousin who is 'strong for' the new movement in art.

The youth remained silent during the view and the subsequent explanations of the new idea given him by his cousin.

Well, said the latter finally, you don't seem particularly enthusiastic about them. What do you think?

Think! growled the youth from Springfield. Why, I have got two aunts at home that can knit better pictures than those.

Will be Amended

Hon. William J. Roche, minister of the interior, who is making a tour of western Canada, announced in Edmonton that the homestead regulations will be amended so that settlers in the timber districts may raise live stock instead of cultivating their lands to prove up their claims, also that the federal government will abolish the stipulation that at least $300 be expended upon a dwelling on the homestead. Less time, too, will be allowed for proving up pre-empted lands. Dr. Roche said also that the Hudson Bay railroad, constructed by the federal government, will be completed and in operation within 18 months, and that good roads will be built in the farming districts. Ten million dollars has been set aside this year for agricultural purposes, the minister added, and the department will do everything in its power to improve farming and ranching conditions in the west.

Indians must stay Out

With a view to encouraging the red man to work and save his earnings, the lieutenant-governor-in-council, sitting in Edmonton, has passed an order that hereafter, "no Indian is to be permitted to enter a pool or billiard room or bowling alley in the province of Alberta." It also provided that any proprietor failing to observe the order shall be subject to the cancellation of his license. William Alexander Wilson, of Edmonton, who has been appointed pool room license inspector, is charged with the enforcement of the law, which was enacted at the last session of the provincial legislature. With pool playing, intoxicating liquor and gambling under the ban, about the only things left for Indians is farming, trapping and horse racing, said a member of the Cree tribe in Edmonton today. "Probably it is for the best," he added, "but it is spoiling a lot of fun for the younger men."
